About Foresters Forum

About the Attendees

The Foresters Forum was established in 2001 by Vincent Corrao (Northwest Management, Inc.) and Jim Riley (Riley Stegner & Associates). The forum has grown to encompass all facets of the forest industry, while providing a fantastic venue for professional foresters and natural resource professionals to gather and collaborate.

Each year builds upon new ideas, techniques, and technologies. Our quality speakers come from all over the nation, bring rich experience, and share the same passion for our industry.

The Forum continues today under the leadership of Mark Corrao (Northwest Management, Inc) and Peter Stegner (Riley Stegner & Associates) and continues to grow even in times of uncertainty. The forest industry is not only making advancements in technology, we are thriving in this century of change.

The Forester Forum attracts nearly 300 attendees with diverse backgrounds from across the United States. Foresters and natural resource professionals come to the forum to participate in professional development and networking opportunities. With record attendance in the last three years and a marked increase in interest and participation from the Midwest and Eastern regions of the United States, the growth of the forum speaks to the quality and value of this event in the Pacific Northwest.

Attendees include many of the most successful and influential foresters and industry leaders from across the nation. We're honored to host a representation of natural resource professionals, including:

- Carbon Project Leaders
- Conservation Organizations
(Non-Government Organizations)
- Federal and State Foresters
- Forest Product Manufacturers
- Forest Resource Emerging
Technology Interests
- Forestry Consultants
- Loggers/Forest Engineers
- Timber Investment Management
Organizations/Real Estate
Investment Trusts
- Tribe and First Nation
Resource Managers
