About Foresters Forum

The Foresters Forum was established in 2001 by Vincent Corrao (Northwest Management, Inc.) and Jim Riley (Riley Stegner & Associates). The forum has grown to encompass all facets of the forest industry, while providing a fantastic venue for professional foresters and natural resource professionals to gather and collaborate.

Each year builds upon new ideas, techniques, and technologies. Our quality speakers come from all over the nation, bring rich experience, and share the same passion for our industry.

The Forum continues today under the leadership of Mark Corrao (Forsite) and Peter Stegner (Riley Stegner & Associates) and continues to grow as the forest industry is making advancements in innovation and technology, as it is thriving in this century of change.

About the Attendees

The Forester Forum attracts nearly 300 foresters and natural resource professionals with diverse backgrounds from across North America that come to the forum to participate in professional development and networking opportunities. With record attendance in the last three years and a marked increase in interest and participation from the Midwest and Eastern regions of the United States, the growth of the forum speaks to the quality and value of this event in the Pacific Northwest.

Attendees include many of the most successful and influential foresters and industry leaders from across the nation. We're honored to host a representation of natural resource professionals, including:

- Forest Product Manufacturers
- Timber Investment Management Organizations & Real Estate Investment Trusts
- Harvesting Contractors and Equipment Specialists
- Advanced Forest Technology Resource Specialists
- Tribal and First Nations Resource Managers
- Conservation Organizations (Non-Government Organizations)
- State and Federal Foresters
- Forestry Consultants
- Forest Carbon Project Leaders
